POSTMASTER ARRESTED.

Because he was in love with Pearl Chamberlain, Herman Acton, postmaster at Millersburg, stopped letters addressed to her from his rival Jesse Burnett, of Cleveland, and is arrested by postoffice authorities. Acton is a young man, 25 years of age and has been going with Miss Chamberlain for some time.

A registered letter from Burnett to Miss Chamberlain was started and all mail clerks were required to receipt for it. The postmaster received the letter but failed to deliver it and Postoffice Inspector Swain arrested Acton on a charge of tampering with the mails.

THEATRE NOTES.

Joseph Jefferson, Sr. has passed from our midst and now his son, William W. is making a bid for some praise that has been bestowed upon the elder Mr. Jefferson. Some few years ago William Winter Jefferson, through the sudden illness of his father, was compelled to assume the role of "Boh Acres" in "The Rivals" at very short notice, and the press at the time spoke very highly of his performance, comparing his work very favorably with his father. He since then, has played the part and accompanied by his brother Joseph, who has been the "Sir Lucius" ever since the death of the lamented W. J. Florence, and supported by a particularly capable company will present the classical comedy at the Fairbanks Theatre, Springfield O., on Christmas day, matinee and night.

THIS WINTER.

"At the last session of the general assembly a bill was introduced in the senate providing for local option by counties. It is now in the hands of a committee, and over its passage or defeat will, this winter, be waged the fiercest fight ever witnessed in the legislative halls of this state."

"Both sides are lining up for the contest. Back of the measure, and pledged to its support is the Anti-Saloon League, the organization which has done more and is doing more for practical temperance than any body ever before organized. It has been the victor on many a well-fought field, and has back of it the great army of church people who at least realize that the way to meet and overcome the brewers and saloon keepers is to prevent a solid front, be active and alert at all times and strike hard blows."

"The liquor element enters this great battle in a groggy condition. Affairs are not going well with it. Throughout the country it is being trimmed to finish. The people are not reaching the decision that there is to be in the future, that it has been the victor on many a well-fought field, and has back of it the great army of church people who at least realize that the way to meet and overcome the brewers and saloon keepers is to prevent a solid front, be active and alert at all times and strike hard blows."

"A county local option law will be enacted this winter only after a desperate struggle. That it will have a good margin in the house is pretty generally conceded, even by the liquor forces, if they speak their honest judgment. The senate will be close, so close that both sides must admit it is debatable ground."

"But when those who oppose local option by counties stand up to advance argument defending their position, they find themselves on untenable ground. Local option has become one of the fixed customs of dealing with the liquor traffic. It is sensible, lawful plan. Here in Ohio it has been in operation four years. First it was local option by township, and it is so effective that of the 1,334 townships in the state more than 1,100 are without saloons. The Best municipal local option law has driven the saloon from more than 400 cities and towns of Ohio, while the Brannock, or Jones law, has cleaned up acres of territory in the residence districts of cities."

"Why not apply the same principle to counties? This county is the political unit. Residents of counties are brought into close association. The majority sentiment is the natural result of social subdivision. Their interests are allied and interwoven, because they live in the same county. Their local pride is bounded by county limits. They are clannish because they are residents of the same county. The family living in one part of a county is interested in all that affects the entire county. The people of a county are neighbors although they may be separated by several townships."

"After all, the proposition of county local option throws the whole question back on the people. Should the legislature enact a county local option law, it does not mean that any power outside the people of the several counties will determine the question of saloon or no saloons. It is simply the legislature giving the citizens of each county the opportunity of saying by a majority vote whether or not they will permit saloons to do business. It is home rule in its greatest simplicity, and who can object to it?"

"Some of the best informed men in Ohio, saloonmen and temperance men, believe that if county option prevails, seventy-eight of the eighty-eight counties of the state will, sooner or later, vote dry. With the great strides made by the temperance forces in recent years, the estimate is probably not too high. But what of it? If the people do not want the saloons, should they not have the opportunity and the means of getting rid of them? What valid reason can be given for not passing a county option law? But the liquor element will not present an argument against such a measure. It does not defend its cause in that way. It will oppose such a law because it will cost it money, and for that reason only. Every resource will be exhausted to defeat the bill."

"But the tide is strong and sentiment is growing. In temperance work Ohio will go forward along with the other states. County local option will come, and if every man does his duty, it will come next winter."

"If you find a man who is opposed to such a measure, ask him for his reason for not permitting the people to exercise their own judgment in the matter. Believe me he cannot advance a valid objection."—Putnam Bulletin.

FOR THE LITTLE ONES.

The Right Pronunciation of Two Words in Common Use.

There are two or three things about "either" and "neither" that children should know, says the Chicago News. In the first place, they should never be used in connection with more than two things—as, "It was either Tuesday or Wednesday," not "either Tuesday, Wednesday or Thursday," "it was neither Tuesday nor Wednesday," not "neither Tuesday, Wednesday nor Thursday." Then either should not be used in the sense of each—as, "They walked on, one on either side of the road." It should be one on "each" side of the road. The third caution is about the pronunciation. Some persons insist that they should be pronounced "i-ther" and "ni-ther," with the "i" long. But this is more an affectation perhaps than anything else. The best authorities agree that the right pronunciation is "e-ther" and "ne-ther."

Dissecting a Violin.

Not one person in a hundred has the slightest notion of how many parts or pieces there are in a violin. Here is a list of them: Back, 2 pieces; belly, 2; coins and blocks, 6; sides, 5; side linings, 12; bar, 1; purflings, 24; neck, 1; finger board, 1; nut, 1; bridge, 1; tailboard, 1; button for tailboard, 1; string for tailboard, 1; guard for string, 1; sound post, 1; strings, 4; pegs, 4; total, 69 pieces. Three kinds of wood are used—maple, pine and ebony. Maple is used for the back, the neck, the sidepieces and the bridge. Pine is used for the belly, the bar, the coins and blocks, the side linings and the sound post. Ebony is used for the finger board, the tailboard, the nut, the guard for string of tailboard, the pegs and the button.—Chicago News.

Rain That Is Not Rain.

In the Colorado desert there are sometimes rainstorms during which not a drop of water touches the ground. The rain may be seen falling from the clouds high above the desert, but when the water reaches the stratum of hot, dry air beneath the clouds it is entirely absorbed before falling half the distance to the earth. It is a singular sight to witness a heavy downpour of rain disappear like magic in the air. The phenomenon occurs in regions where the temperature in the shade reaches as high as 128 degrees, and it is of course the great heat that turns the water into vapor.

Eight Puzzles.

Feet have they, but they walk not—stores.

Eyes have they, but they see not—potatoes.
Teeth have they, but they chew not—caws.
Noses have they, but they smell not—scapots.
Months have they, but they taste not—rivers.
Hands have they, but they handle not—clocks.
Ears have they, but they hear not—cornstalks.
Tongues have they, but they talk not—wagons.

Middle Box.

Who dares to sit before the queen with his hat on? The coachman.
When is a doctor most annoyed? When he is out of patients.
Why is a defeated army like wool? Because it is worsted.
What relation is a doormat to a doorstep? A step farther.
Who was the first person in history who had a bang on the forehead? Goliath.
Why is a girl's belt like a scavenger? Because it goes around and gathers up the waist (waste).

Folly and Dolly.
I am little Miss Folly;
I have a new dolly.
A pretty, sweet dolly,
You see.

Her eyes are so blue
And she is quite new,
And my grandmamma gave her
To me.

Mixed.

A Wisconsin schoolteacher had among her pupils a little boy named Jackey, who was always late in the morning. But one day he managed to get to the schoolhouse before the bell rang, whereupon he said to the teacher: "Well, today I am before at last. I always was behind before."

CONDENSED STORIES.

Mrs. Sembrich's Unexpected Compliment From the Kaiser.
One of the highest encomiums which Mrs. Sembrich ever received did not come because of her singing at all, but from her skill in a very different direction. The singer is an ardent horsewoman. While in New York she may frequently be seen riding in Central park. Her nerves are of the sort to put the average man to shame, and her muscles, made strong by constant piano practice, can tune the most refractory steed.

One day in Berlin while riding on the parade grounds her horse, a white Barbary mare, became unruly. For ten minutes there was an exciting struggle between rider and horse, and then the charger tamed down. Mrs. Sembrich, intent upon the animal, did not notice that an anxious crowd had assembled and was eagerly watching the outcome of her efforts. Finally when the horse was brought to submission she started away and at the same time became aware of the crowd of spectators. But, above all, two officers rode up and saluted.

"Madam," said one of the officers, "if you were not the greatest singer in the world you would be empress of the circus."

And as Mrs. Sembrich heard these words she trembled and grew far more nervous than she had been when struggling with her horse, for the speaker was no other than the emperor of Germany.—Bohemian.

had in 1888 and 1889 and 1890. Then came the happy hunting ground of the English public school boy, and he comes to the shore to be fished. They all dined there. There are French, German and Dutch who don't at ways know English, but still they pay and call up. These English boys are of the best. They are outspoken—hotter piece, you know, but you fellows pulled it through. They are with us all the time, and we catch their high spirits and saw we go, all the better for it."

He says the American in Manila rather a backhanded compliment: "In Manila we found the Yankees good fellows. But we made a mistake there. We gave them a play of English manners, and the Yankees, having none, didn't understand it."

A Naaty Trick.
"An amusing but nasty trick was played in the early autumn at George W. Vanderbilt's Biltmore estate near Asheville," said a Pittsburgh florist. "A friend of mine, one of the Biltmore gardeners, wrote and told me about it the other day."

"It seems that at the entrance to Biltmore there was a sign that read, 'Please do not pluck the flowers without leave.'"

"Well, one visitor's day some joker added an 's' to the sign's last word. As a result, every visitor left Biltmore that day with a delighted smile and an enormous bouquet."

MY DREAM.

Thrilled by that grand old story of love
Of the days of chivalry,
Example of fidelity never surpassed
Save by that one on Calvary,
That the sin stained souls of the children of men
Still need not suffer loss.
The fairest and purest of Heaven's realm Hung bleeding upon the cross.
Second only to this is that story, I say,
In which Pythian's volumes can see While together they form the foundation on which We are building the F. C. B.
Do you wonder then, brothers, when questions arise
That are asked to you and to me,
That my heart strikes the chord to a strange lullaby,
And I'm launched into reverie?
All the helpless and homeless adrift with the tide,
A picture appalling to see Now darkens the screen, and I sadly exclaim,
"Oh, where is sweet charity?
Can she not melt the ice from a heart frozen world,
And kindle the spark in that tomb
That the suffering, sorrowing creatures of earth
May have light for dispelling the gloom?
I see walls on the billows tossed hither and yon
I see children who know not the joys Of a home, with a mother to love and care,
Nor comforts nor pleasures nor toys
But Pythian charity boundless and true,
The blank in such sad lives to fill,
Gathers in the unfortunate ones of her flock
To her beautiful home on the hill.
Here, small visitors plainly can see Are these little ones sheltered with care,
All is done that kind hearts and deft fingers can do,
A message from mother to bear,
Contented and happy, polite and refined
With faces so cheerful and bright Gleefully singing while busy at play
"Entraptured" I stood at the sight On transforming reverie look on the screen
A garden of flowers behold,
Sweet buds peeping open their beauty reveal Which dewdrops sun-kissed tip with gold,
Oh artist come paint me this picture so bright,
Paint it quickly in life colors, pray,
A vivid portrayal of Pythian love.
Ere it fades forever away For strangers are coming and going at will,
For such in my dream is decreed:
They are singing and hearing those flowers away.
Each one for his pleasure or need,
Yes, wandering flowers from the spring-side of life.
Left to our fostering care,
Idle as precious to somebody's heart
Who has whispered the password up there,
Some are welcomed with joy where a small vacant chair, Shows a breach in the home and the heart;
Some in homes that the sunshine of childhood never knew,
Are given a beautiful part,
But dark is the shadow that speeds like a pall
Over many a life pure and bright
By a thirder more trying than freedmen ever knew
'Neath the guise of religion and right, Cares heaped upon childhood with worry and toil
Which should be light hearted and free
With reproach and neglect as the wages of those Doomed to this heartless slavery.
A wail from the valley, a cry from the hill
A moon here and there o'er the plain Tells the sad surprised story in this Christian land,
Of misery, sorrow or pain.
Would you ignore that sacred trust thus placed in you
By that brother who sleeps 'neath the soil,
That our Pythian home should his loved ones maintain,
Would you scatter those children abroad?
Would you weaken that friendship we value so high,
Would you crimson sweet charity's face,
Would you of Benevolence ridicule make
Would you Pythianism disgrace?
Pride of our order, our Pythian home,
'Where childhood, light hearted and free
May drink of the pleasures this world owes to it.
To the glory of the F. C. B.
So long as love lives in the bosom of man,
So long as our old flag waves
Let us keep it a Pythian children's home
Not a shipping cove for slaves.

Female Fear of Mice.
Why are women afraid of mice?
Although this problem has claimed the attention of the greatest philosophers, it must be admitted that we are as much at a loss for a scientific and psychological explanation as was Adam after the first field mouse of the tribe drove Eve up a tree.

An Eye to Sparg.
"Be careful how you shoot that arrow this way," said the supporter of the family to the kid. "You'll put out my eye and then I can't write any more." "Why?" asked the kid, as he kept on shooting. "Can't you write with one eye?"

Deaths from Snake Bites.
There are no complete statistics to show how many persons die in the world of snake bites each year. The number, however, has been placed at 30,000. In the United States, so far as known, the annual fatalities amount to about 50. Florida is generally looked upon to contribute several of these with regularity.

Habit and Imitation.
Habit is our primal fundamental law. Habit and imitation there is nothing more powerful in us than these two. They are the source of all working and all apprenticeship, of all practice and all learning in the world.
—Carlyle.

Enlarging Your Business

If you are in business and you want to make more money you will read every word we have to say. Are you spending your money for advertising in haphazard fashion as if intended for charity, or do you advertise for direct results?
Did you ever stop to think how your advertising can be made a source of profit to you, and how its value can be measured in dollars and cents. If you have not, you are throwing money away.
Advertising is a modern business necessity, but must be conducted on business principles. If you are not satisfied with your advertising you should set aside a certain amount of money to be spent annually, and then carefully note the effect it has in increasing your volume of business; whether a 10, 20 or 30 per cent increase. If you watch this gain from year to year you will become intensely interested in your advertising, and how you can make it enlarge your business.

If you try this method we believe you will not want to let a single issue of this paper go to press without something from your store.
We will be pleased to have you call on us, and we will take pleasure in explaining our annual contract for so many inches, and how it can be used in whatever amount that seems necessary to you.
If you can sell goods over the counter we can also show you why this paper will bear witness to your success when you want to reach the people of this community.
